

(b) Write in hieroglyphs and transliteration:

- (1) The crocodile is in the river.
- (2) The moon rejoices, when the sun is in his horizon.
- (3) Then (th) shall thy name be heard by the vizier.
- (4) This scribe is in his office by day (and) by night.
- (5) The donkey goes down to the city upon another road.
- (6) The scribe sends this boat, that we may cross in it.
- (7) He rejoices because of thy utterance.
- (8) This land is in joy, when thou art in the sky.
- (9) He fares down to this city, his daughter with him.

LESSON IV

§ 41. Biliteral signs (continued from § 31):—

ii. with t as second consonant:

iii. with r as second consonant:

iv. with w as second consonant:

v. with b as second consonant:

1 Sometimes used to accompany, or even to replace, a simple sw when used as a grammatical affirmative.

§ 42. The triliteral signs (§ 17, 3) represent combinations of three consonants, and have naturally a far more restricted use than the biliteral signs. They need be learnt only as occasion arises.

Like the biliteral signs, they are usually accompanied by phonetic complements (§ 32). Two arrangements are particularly frequent: the one consists in adding the third consonant only, exx. stand up, arise; become; hear.

The other consists in appending both the second and third consonants, exx. $\text{h} \text{m}$ nfr good, happy, beautiful; $\text{h} \text{m}$ live; $\text{h} \text{p}$ rest, become at peace.

OBS. The student may be puzzled at finding h in sdm here treated as a trilateral sign, while in § 22 it was described as an ideogram. This contradiction must be explained. In the case of the trilaterals the distinction between phonograms and ideograms becomes particularly precarious. Thus probably all words containing the consonants $\text{h} + \text{t} + \text{p}$ are etymologically connected with the verb-stem $\text{h} \text{p}$ 'rest', 'be propitiated'; they are, moreover, all written with the sign h representing a loaf placed on a reed-mat—a sign taken over from a word ($\text{h} \text{p}$ 'altar') perhaps literally 'place of propitiation'. The sign h in any given word may be described as ideographic in so far as any connexion of meaning is discernible between that word and the word for 'altar', 'place of propitiation'; it may be described as phonetic, on the other hand, in so far as the sound-value outweighs, or throws into the shade, such similarity of meaning.

2. The dependent pronouns¹ are less closely attached to a preceding word than the suffix-pronouns (§ 34), but can never stand as first word of a sentence.

Sing. 1, c.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	I, me.	Or $\text{e} \text{h}$. Varr. as in the corresponding suffix (§ 34), $\text{h} \text{h}$, ² $\text{h} \text{h}$, ³ $\text{h} \text{h}$, ⁴ h , ⁵ etc.
" 2, m.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	Thou, thee.	Later also $\text{h} \text{w}$.
" 2, f.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	" "	Later also $\text{h} \text{w}$.
" 3, m.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	He, him, it.	Originally $\text{h} \text{w}$.
" 3, f.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	She, her, it.	Early h ; later also written h or h . Originally $\text{h} \text{w}$.
" 3, f.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	(see § 46).	Later writings h , h , ^{6a} . Originally $\text{h} \text{w}$.
Plur. 1, c.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	We, us.	Rarely h .
" 2, c.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	You.	Or h w , later also h or h w .
" 3, c.	$\text{h} \text{w}$	They, them.	Or h w , later also written h or h . Originally $\text{h} \text{w}$.

^{6b} So too an archaic dual, $\text{h} \text{w}$, ERM. Hymn. 12, 2.

OBS. 1. For the $\text{h} \text{w}$, $\text{h} \text{w}$, and $\text{h} \text{w}$ which, from Dyn. XVIII onwards, are occasionally found as subject to an adverbial predicate or to the old perfective, and which may stand at the beginning of the sentence, see below § 124. See too Add., § 148, 1, OBS.

OBS. 2. A form $\text{h} \text{w}$ is very rarely found as object in place of $\text{h} \text{w}$ 'you'.⁶ In one text h 'thou' (f.) is used strangely as a suffix-pronoun.⁷ Both are probably explicable by § 34, OBS. 4.

⁶ ERM. Gramm. p. 83, n. 2.
⁷ ERM. Hymn. p. 40.

§ 44. Among the chief uses of the dependent pronouns are the following:

I. as object of any form of the verb⁸ except, as a rule, the infinitive. Exx. $\text{h} \text{w}$ $\text{h} \text{w}$ 'thou sendest me'; $\text{h} \text{w}$ $\text{h} \text{w}$ 'he ferried him over'.

⁸ After active old perfective, ex. LAC. TR. 1, 54; after imperative, SA. S. 179; after participles and $\text{h} \text{w}$ form, see § 37b.

OBS. $\text{h} \text{w}$ as object is uncommon, usually being replaced by $\text{h} \text{w}$ of § 46; some exx. may, however, be quoted.⁹

⁹ Eand. 9, 11 A; Urk. v. 162, 6; Urk. iv. 346, 12; 618, 5.

p. 44.

2. after a number of particles like $\text{𓂏} = \text{ist}$ 'lo', $\text{𓂏} \text{nk}$ 'behold', $\text{𓂏} \text{nn}$ 'not' ($\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ 'that'), as well as the relative adjective $\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ 'which' (§ 199); in these cases the pronoun frequently serves as subject when an adverbial predicate follows.

Exx. $\text{𓂏} \text{nk}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m-bk}$ behold, I am before thee.²

$\text{𓂏} \text{nk}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m-bk}$ behold thou art my servant, lit. as my servant.

Note that the m of predication (§ 38) is employed also in this case.³

$\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ it was not in my heart.⁴

$\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ this state in which I was, lit. this state which I (was) under it.⁵

3. as subject after adjectival predicate.

Ex. $\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ thou art happy with me; $\text{𓂏} \text{tw}$ here is for tw , and is to be carefully distinguished from the indefinite pronoun of § 47.

§ 45. Reflexive use of the dependent pronouns.—Like the suffixes (§ 36), the dependent pronouns are used reflexively.

Ex. $\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ I placed myself on my belly.⁷

§ 46. The pronoun $\text{𓂏} \text{st}$ appears to be an old form of the dependent pronoun 3rd sing. f.,⁸ which has been specialized for certain particular uses, mainly in place of the 3rd plur. 'they', 'them', or of the neuter 'it'.

1. as object of the verb.

Exx. $\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ they turned themselves about.⁹ Note the reflexive meaning.

$\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ thou shalt cause (that) thy son hear it.¹⁰

2. after the particles, etc., named in § 44, 2.

Exx. $\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ behold, they (my gifts to thee) are before thee.¹¹

$\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ the place where it is, lit. which it (is) therein.¹²

3. as subject after adjectival predicate.

Ex. $\text{𓂏} \text{nty}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ it is more beautiful than anything.¹³

OBS. For st as object of the infinitive, like a suffix, see § 300.^{13a}

§ 47. The indefinite pronoun $\text{𓂏} \text{tw}$ 'one', French on, which we have found used like a suffix in the sdm.f form, ex. $\text{𓂏} \text{tw}$ 'one says' (§ 39), may also be employed after the particles mentioned in § 44, 2 and others like hr, § 239; kt, § 242.

Ex. $\text{𓂏} \text{tw}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{m}$ $\text{𓂏} \text{b-t}$ behold, one says, lit. behold one, one says.¹⁴ indicating the passive voice in the sdm.f and other forms of the suffix conjugation see §§ 39, 410; in the pseudo-verbal construction tw-tw occurs (an ex. in § 332), as well as wn-in-tw (§ 470); cf. also hr-tw (kr-tw, tw-tw) sdm-tw-f, §§ 239, 242, 463. A very exceptional example after the infinitive used absolutely, § 306 (last ex. but one). Syntactically, tw is treated as of masculine gender, see § 511, 5.

§ 48. Adjectives may be used as ^(mod. fr. uals) epithets, as predicates, or as nouns.

1. when used as epithets they follow their nouns, agreeing with them in number and gender. The ending sing. f. is -t, as with the noun; for the plural, see below §§ 72, 74.

Ex. ḥr pn bin this evil counsel. ḥt nfr every good thing.

Follow Noun they modify in Egyptian

These examples illustrate the fact that -n 'every', 'any', 'all', and demonstrative adjectives which, like pn, follow their noun, have precedence of position over other adjectives. So too the suffixes when used possessively.

Ex. sdm f srt his little daughter.

The word for 'other', m. ky, f. kt, precedes its noun, see Exercise I (a); so too the demonstratives pt 'this' and pt(y) 'that', see below § 111.

With the adjective nb the plural ending (§ 72) is usually, the fem. ending often, omitted in writing, exx. nfrw nb(w) 'all gods'; ḥt nb(t) 'everything'.

Obs. The masc. plur. ending is, however, sometimes shown; * Copt. nm is invariable.

2. when used as predicate, the adjective precedes its subject, and is invariable both in gender and in number.

Exx. nfr tbt my heart is happy. bin sy she is bad.

Note that a dependent pronoun, not a suffix, is here used as subject (§ 44, 3).

3. when used as a noun, the adjective is generally followed by some appropriate determinative. Exx. srt 'small boy', 'lad'; nfrt 'beautiful woman'; nfrt 'beautiful cow'.

§ 49. The ending ^(iaw) -wy, much more rarely written ḥ, as regularly in Old Egyptian, is sometimes added to adjectival predicates in order to give them an exclamatory force.

Ex. nfr-wy pr pn how beautiful is this house!*

Obs. It is probable that this -wy is merely the masc. dual ending (below § 72) with a special signification; in this case nfr-wy would mean 'twice beautiful', compare modern Arabic marhabātin 'twice welcome'.

§ 50. The Egyptian adjective has no special forms to indicate the degrees of comparison. Comparison is effected by means of the preposition -r, which here signifies 'more than', literally perhaps 'relatively to'.

Ex. st r bt they were more numerous than anything.*

* Dyn. XII, Ann. 39, 189, 3; Arch. p. 23; Dyn. XXIII, Urk. IV, 384, 1.

* Sines 3, 12; 4, 31; Urk. IV, 817, 9.

EGYPTIAN GRAMMAR

§ 51. The sense of the English neuter ('it', 'thing') is expressed in Egyptian by the feminine. Exx. 'an evil (thing)', 'evil'; 'on account of it'.¹ Compare too the use of st, see above § 46.

§ 52. The meaning of the dative is rendered by means of the preposition n 'to', 'for'.

Exx. h3b-k s3 n nb-k thou sendest the scribe to thy lord.
dd-n n-tu we speak to you.

EXERCISE IV

(N.B. In analysing complex examples like (1) and (2), the student should first transliterate the whole, and then divide it into its component sentences and clauses.)

(a) Transliterate and translate:

(1) (2)

① The son is good when he hearkens to (obeys) his father. When he is a child he gives this conceit from his heart he remembers.

(6) Write in hieroglyphs and transliteration:
 (1) How beautiful is this thy house! Behold, it is in my sight (lit. face) like heaven. (2) The sun sets in life² every day. (3) Behold, thou art with me as a maid-servant. (4) She is more beautiful than her daughter. (5) Evil is on every side (lit. road). (6) Then we will stand up (and) speak to our good lord. (7) Every man is in joy, when he hears (lit. they hear) it. (8) Mayest thou go down in peace to thy city. (9) How excellent is this thy counsel in (lit. upon) my heart, (O) sovereign, my lord!

¹ For the plural suffix see § 510, 2. ² A common Egyptian phrase meaning perhaps 'to set in full vigour'.

LESSON V

§ 53. Biliteral signs (continued from § 41):—

vi. with p as second consonant:

vii. with m as second consonant:

viii. with n as second consonant:

PECULIARITIES OF HIEROGLYPHIC WRITING.¹

§ 54. The classification of the hieroglyphs into (1) ideograms or sense-signs and (2) phonograms or sound-signs (§ 6) covers the entire ground, but, as shown in § 42, Obs., the line of demarcation between the two classes is often difficult to draw. Nor must it be imagined that all the signs contained in the sub-divisions of these main groups stand on an equal footing and conform to identical rules; on the contrary, custom plays a very important part in deciding what writings are possible and what are not, though variant spellings are very numerous. A few examples will make this statement clearer.

¹ See ERM. Gramm. §§ 16-89, where this subject is dealt with in greater detail; also LEX. GR. §§ 9-66.

'House' (pr) is written \square , much more rarely \square ; such a writing as \square is never found.

'To be firm', 'remain' (mn) is always \square or the like, never \square .

The club-sign \square is used with phonetic (or semi-phonetic) value in a few words like \square hm 'slave', \square hmt 'female slave', as well as in the common expression \square hm:f 'His Majesty' (see further below, Excursus A, p. 74); but it has not otherwise obtained currency as a biliteral for hm, the sign \square being used for that purpose.

Yet again, some signs used phonetically must be preceded by letters representing the whole of their sound-value: so \square in \square \square \square ib 'thirst', which is phonetic inasmuch as the entire word \square \square ib 'kid' enters bodily into the writing of the etymologically unrelated verb for 'thirst'; here \square alone is not phonetic, since such a writing as \square without \square would be quite abnormal in early times. It is useful to describe such signs as phonetic determinatives; other examples are \square in \square hm 'sentence', 'saying'; \square (tr) in \square \square htr 'pair of horses'; \square (ir) in \square mir 'miserable'.

Enough has been said to indicate that a correct theoretical account of all hieroglyphic spellings would be a very long and tedious undertaking. The method of this book is largely based upon the view that beginners, having once mastered the main principles of the writing, should not inquire too curiously into the nature of individual spellings, but should learn both the hieroglyphic groups and their transliterations mechanically. It is as unnecessary—to take an extreme instance—for the beginner to know why \square 'king', strictly 'king of Upper Egypt', variant \square , is to be read nsw and not swtn as it would be for a learner of English to know why the word pronounced plow is now written 'plough'.

The student must, accordingly, expect to find in the Vocabularies a number of spellings which he will not at once understand. In order, however, to elucidate a few simple problems that may perplex him at an early stage, some paragraphs will be devoted to certain types of peculiar writing.

§ 55. Abbreviations.—These are commonest in monumental inscriptions, stereotyped phrases, formulae, titles, and the like.

Exx. \square \square nh wds snb, in full \square \square \square \square 'may he live, be prosperous, be healthy' (below § 313, end), attributes bestowed on the king and on honoured persons by the gods, and prayed for by men on their behalf; often appended as a token of respect to words for 'king', 'lord', etc.

\square or \square ms-hrw, fuller writing \square \square \square 'true of voice', an epithet added to the names of dead persons and hence often practically equivalent to our 'deceased'. Originally applied to Osiris with reference to the occasion when his regal rights, being disputed by Seth, were vindicated before the divine tribunal in Heliopolis. The same epithet is also used in connexion with Horus as the 'triumphant' avenger of the wrongs done to Osiris.

𓆎𓆏 whm nḥ 'repeating life', another epithet given to deceased persons in Dyn. XVIII and thereabouts.

𓆎𓆏𓆑 ḥs nḥt, in full 𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒𓆓, 'victorious bull', an attribute ascribed to the Pharaoh.

𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒𓆓 n-sw-ḥt 'king of Upper and Lower Egypt', literally 'he who belongs to the sedge of Upper Egypt and the bee of Lower Egypt'; compare 𓆎𓆏𓆑 ḥt 'king of Lower Egypt', a derivative in y from ḥt.¹

𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒 ḥt-y, literally 'foremost in position', a common term for local princes or mayors.

𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔 im-y-r ḥmw-nṯr 'overseer of the priests', more fully 𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒𓆓𓆔𓆕 (§ 73).

§ 56. Graphic transpositions.²—Signs are sometimes transposed, either in order to give a more pleasing appearance or for some less assignable reason.

A small sign may be placed under the breast of a bird even when the latter has to be read first; thus 𓆎, according to the word in which it occurs, may be read either tw or wt; 𓆏 similarly either ts or st.

Thin vertical signs show a peculiar tendency to precede a bird which they ought properly to follow. Exx. 𓆎𓆏 wd instead of 𓆎𓆏; 𓆎𓆏 wd in place of 𓆎𓆏; 𓆎𓆏 ḥt 'field' as variant of 𓆎𓆏; 𓆎𓆏𓆑 mr 'pyramid' always for 𓆎𓆏𓆑.

Economy of space is one reason for such writings as 𓆎𓆏 for 𓆎𓆏𓆑 sb 'star'; 𓆎𓆏 for 𓆎𓆏𓆑 ḥry-ḥb(t) 'lector-priest'. So too in vertical columns 𓆎𓆏 is of frequent occurrence for 𓆎𓆏𓆑 -yt and 𓆎𓆏𓆑 for 𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒 hr rdwy 'under the feet (of)'.³

§ 57. Transpositions with honorific intent.—There is a common tendency to write words like 𓆎𓆏 nsw 'king' and 𓆎𓆏 nṯr 'god', as well as the names of specific kings and gods, before closely connected words which in actual speech were pronounced first. Exx. 𓆎𓆏𓆑 sb nsw 'scribe of the king'; 𓆎𓆏𓆑 ḥm-nṯr 'servant of god', i.e. 'priest'; 𓆎𓆏 mi Rr 'like Rr'; 𓆎𓆏𓆑𓆒𓆓 mry Imn 'beloved of Amūn'.⁴ Note that abbreviated writings are here frequent.

§ 58. Monograms.—(1) In certain verbs involving the notion of movement the ideogram 𓆎 is combined with a phonogram.

So with 𓆎 t: 𓆎𓆏 tt come.

„ — t: 𓆎𓆏 ts go (imperative); 𓆎𓆏 ms bring, offer; 𓆎𓆏 sb bring, conduct, pass.

„ 𓆎 nw, tn: 𓆎𓆏 tn bring, fetch.

„ = sm: 𓆎𓆏𓆑 sm guide, lead.

¹ Vocalized as ḥt-ḥt in a cuneiform tablet from Boghas Keui; see AZ. 49, 17.
² AZ. 25, 125; 49, 19.

³ See Roc. 25, 139; Pyr. iv. § 17.

⁴ Probable meaning 'holder of the ritual book', hence ḥb(t), not ḥb; see JEA. 41, 11, n. 3. Sim. ḥr(t)-nṯr 'necropolis' omits the fem. ending, JEA. 24, 244; so too ḥb(t), § 48, 1.

⁵ Cf. also 'beloved of his lord' written nb f mry, e.g. Sines 87; 'praise god' written mry dwt, e.g. p. 173, last ex.

(2) Some other common monograms are:

⌈ or ⌋ in tr season	⌘ mm	⌘ hrt-hrw daytime
⌈ in rup be young	⌘ rs(w) southern	⌘ th palace
⌘ mi, m	⌘ Smtw Upper Egypt	⌘ wgr judge

§ 59. Defective and superfluous writings.—Such writings as ⌘⌘⌘ for rmf 'men', 'people', and ⌘⌘⌘ for hnt 'beer' are in no way at variance with the rules already given, but are apt to puzzle beginners. The omission of m and n here is probably due to calligraphic reasons; but the Egyptian was under no obligation to prefix to an ideogram more phonetic signs than were needed to remove obscurity. Conversely, a superfluous w is inserted in ⌘⌘⌘ i(w)f 'flesh', 'meat', Coptic showing that if is to be read.¹⁰

§ 60. Group-writing.²—A peculiar method of writing with biliteral instead of alphabetical signs, e.g. — r for r, ⌘⌘ h for h, and with some other groups, e.g. ⌘⌘ h for h, ⌘⌘⌘ for t; especially often in foreign words or etymologically obscure names, e.g. ⌘⌘⌘⌘⌘⌘, a foreign land, to be transliterated Tht, not *Tshwtw*³; ⌘⌘⌘ m, not *'smi*⁴, a man's name. Traces already in the Pyramid Texts, and partial exx. even in some M.E. words, e.g. ⌘⌘⌘ ddt:f for ddt:f, § 409.

§ 61. Determination of compounds.—Compounds and other closely connected groups of words may show one common determinative or group of determinatives; exx. ⌘⌘⌘ bw-nb 'every one', lit. 'every place'; ⌘⌘⌘ r-h-t 'a wise man', lit. 'a knower of things'.⁵ Doubtless for this reason titles preceding the name of their owner are usually left without a determinative of their own, ex. ⌘⌘⌘ ss Nht 'the scribe Nakht'.

§ 62. Avoidance of the repetition of like consonantal signs in contiguity.⁶—When, for inflexional or other reasons, two like consonants either fell together or else came into close contact so as not to be separated by a full vowel, there was a strong tendency to write them but once. Thus, within the limits of a single word, ⌘⌘ m(w)t is written for ⌘⌘⌘ m(w)t-t (§ 309), ⌘⌘ inf for ⌘⌘⌘ in-nf (§ 413). In the kind of verbs known as geminating (see below § 269) this rule is still stricter, the alternative writing with repetition being practically excluded.

The same tendency not seldom manifests itself when a word ending with a certain consonant is immediately followed by another word beginning with the same consonant, ex. ⌘⌘⌘ ir-ni ist for ir-ni is st 'lo, I did it'.⁸ This case occurs particularly often with uniconsonantal words or the like, so that they then find no expression at all in the writing; exx. ⌘⌘⌘ dr-tw irf m for dr-tw irf m m 'by what means (lit. with what) shall one ferry across?';⁹ ⌘⌘⌘ smt-sn nf for smt-sn nf 'they report to him'¹⁰ beside ⌘⌘⌘.¹¹

Conversely, a consonant is sometimes abnormally repeated, doubtless to mark the retention of a sound that in other combinations had fallen away; exx. 𓂏𓂏𓂏 sb-sn n wt for sb-sn wt 'they shall convey me'; 𓂏𓂏𓂏 mn n wt for mn wt 'behold ye me'; 𓂏𓂏𓂏 wt t-n for wt-n 'our road'.

See Add. for § 62A.

§ 63. Doubtful readings.—A consequence of the complex and often defective nature of hieroglyphic writing is that scholars are still often in doubt as to the correct transliteration of words. Thus 𓂏𓂏 hkt 'beer' (§ 59) is in other books on Egyptian almost universally read hkt; in old-fashioned works 𓂏𓂏 nsw 'king' is regularly rendered as swtn; and so forth. Among readings which are not yet fully established we incline to gnwty for 𓂏𓂏 'sculptor', sdwty for 𓂏𓂏 'treasurer'. Where there is a choice, shorter readings are preferable to long ones; thus we read mn for 𓂏𓂏 'moor', though the stem is probably mint.

See Add. for § 63A.

3. The independent pronouns⁴ almost always stand at the beginning of the sentence (exceptions § 300), and are more or less emphatic in meaning

- Sing. 1, c. 𓂏 tnt I. Also written 𓂏, 𓂏 or 𓂏; early also 𓂏; king sometimes 𓂏, 𓂏.
- 2, m. 𓂏 ntk Thou.
- 2, f. 𓂏 ntf He, it. Later also 𓂏 ntt.⁵
- 3, m. 𓂏 nif Thou.
- 3, f. 𓂏 nts She, it. From Dyn. XVIII also 𓂏.
- Plur. 1, c. 𓂏 inn We. Hitherto noted only in very late texts.¹⁰
- 2, c. 𓂏 ntn You. Later also 𓂏 ntn.
- 3, c. 𓂏 ntsn They. Later also 𓂏.

These pronouns often stand in parallelism to the particle (§ 227) or preposition (§ 168) 𓂏 in followed by a noun, and are clearly related to that word etymologically.

OBS. This series is closely connected with the personal pronouns in Hebrew and Arabic. The element in is probably demonstrative in origin,¹¹ the t may be that of the feminine, and the variable endings are mainly those of the suffix-pronouns.

In the Pyramid Texts and the Old Kingdom the place of the forms above given for the 2nd and 3rd pers. sing. is occupied by an earlier type of independent pronoun formed from the dependent pronouns by the addition of t.¹² The two masculines have survived into Middle Egyptian as archaisms.

- Sing. 2, c. 𓂏 twt Thou. Later 𓂏 twt.¹³
- 3, c. 𓂏 swt He, she, it. Originally swt.

OBS. Twt and swt were originally masculines only; in Middle Egyptian they are found for both genders.¹⁴ Swt as a particle meaning 'but', see below § 254.

§ 65. The uses of the independent pronouns to be noted at this point are:

1. as subject of sentences with directly juxtaposed nominal predicate.

Exx. $\text{ank } \text{tk} \text{ I am thy father.}$

$\text{nsf } \text{sr} \text{ s he is her son.}$

$\text{tw} \text{ n} \text{ t thou art my lord.}$

2. as subject of sentences with adjectival predicate. This use is almost confined to the 1st pers. sing.

Ex. $\text{ank } \text{nfr} \text{ I am good.}$

In both uses a certain degree of emphasis rests upon the pronouns, and in some contexts it would be desirable to translate, 'it is I (who am) thy father', 'it is I (who am) good', etc.

Observe carefully that it is against Egyptian usage to employ the independent pronoun when the predicate is adverbial; 'thou art in the house' may be rendered by $\text{tk} \text{ n} \text{ tk}$ or by $\text{tk} \text{ n} \text{ tk}$, but not by ank § 66. Word-order.—It is now necessary to supplement what was said on this score in §§ 27, 29.

The dative (§ 52) differs from other adverbial phrases (i.e. preposition accompanied by a noun) in its tendency to follow as closely as possible the word that governs it. The following sentence exemplifies the usual word-order.

This word-order is, however, modified when the subject or object is a pronoun; also when the preposition n governs a suffix-pronoun so as to form a dative case.

In these conditions the rule is that a noun must not precede a pronoun and that the dependent pronoun must not precede a suffix.

Exx. $\text{hbf } \text{tw}$ he sends thee.

$\text{hbf } \text{tw} \text{ st}$ the scribe sends thee.

$\text{di } \text{tn} \text{ sr} \text{f}$ his son ferries you across; or 'you ferry his son across', since tn may be the suffix just as well as the dependent pronoun.

$\text{wbb} \text{ n} \text{ t} \text{ n} \text{f} \text{ st}$ I answered (sdm-nf form § 67) it to him.¹

$\text{in} \text{ n} \text{ k} \text{ st} \text{ st}$ the scribe brings it to thee.

$\text{nn} \text{ n} \text{ k} \text{ st}$ it does not belong to thee, lit. it is not to thee.³

$\text{tw} \text{ n} \text{ k} \text{ hrw} \text{ nfr}$ holiday is thine, lit. a good day is to thee.⁴

$\text{tw} \text{f} \text{ n} \text{ t}$ he is mine, lit. he is to me.⁵

Certain particles, termed enclitics (§ 226), which cannot stand at the beginning of a sentence, may take precedence of the subject (when a noun) or the object or the dative. Such are grt' now (often best left untranslated) rf (with wishes, commands, questions, etc.), and hm 'assuredly' in the following examples.

tr-n(t) grt mcht(t) r rd n ntr 'now I made my tomb at the staircase of the great god.'¹

sdkt rf n-k nltt try 'let me relate to thee the like thereof.'²

Similarly in more complex constructions, as st sw hm tyf 'and now indeed he was returning'.³ See § 148, 1.

Such non-enclitic particles as nk 'behold', nn 'not' (§ 44, 2) stand at the beginning of the sentence, preceding even the verb. Examples below § 119, and often.

OBS. Exceptional word-order is more often than not due to motives of emphasis, see below §§ 146 foll.; but compare also § 507.

§ 67. The sdm-n-f form. — This second common form of the verb is constructed, as regards its pronominal or nominal subjects, as well as in its mode of expressing the passive, exactly like the sdm-f form (§ 39). From that form it differs only in the insertion of an inseparable element — n immediately after the verb-stem or after any determinative which the verb-stem may have.

Exx. sdm-n-t hrw-f I heard his voice.

sdm-n ntr hrw the god heard the voice.

sdm-n st ntr the god heard it.

sdm-n-tw hrw the voice was heard.

pr-n-f he went out.

hd-n n-k nb-k thy lord has sent to thee.

ms-n-tw-t I was born.

Observe that the rules of word-order given in § 66 apply also here. A full paradigm is unnecessary; the one point to remember is that the formative n is inseparable from the verb-stem.

In its origin the sdm-n-f form appears to have resulted from the combination of a passive participle with a dative of possession or agential interest. Thus pr-n-f would mean 'gone out to him', sdm-n-f 'heard to him'.

Since the sdm-n-f form expresses essentially what occurs or happens to someone or by his agency, it was at the start no less indeterminate, as regards time-position, than the sdm-f form. We shall later on become acquainted with one affirmative use (§ 414, 5) in which the sdm-n-f must be translated as an English present; and so too very frequently when it is preceded by the negative word n 'not' (§ 105, 3). These are, however, exceptional cases; almost

(a) Transliterate and translate:

- (1)  (2)  (3)  (4)
- (5)  (6)
- hmt gm find. (1) hmt gm find. (2) hmt gm find. (3) hmt gm find. (4) hmt gm find. (5) hmt gm find. (6) hmt gm find.*

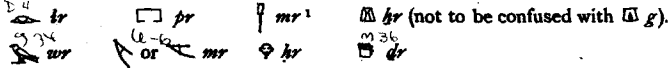

(d) Write in hieroglyphs and transliteration:
 (1) The scribe, opened his mouth that he might answer the king: (O) sovereign, my lord! Thou art greater than any god. Thou art my lord, I am thy slave. This thy humble servant is like a hound following after thee. The Black Land (and) the Red Land rejoice (because) thou art (tw-k) beneficent king.
 (2) He caused them to go down to the boat. (3) How evil is thy utterance; thou art not (§ 44, 2) my brother. (4) She is my sister; she is in thy hand as a slave.

¹ 'This thy humble servant' is to be rendered simply det sw 'the servant there', a respectful circumlocution for the 1st pers. sing. in Middle Egyptian. See AZ. 27, 122; 30, 126.

 tr pr *mr*¹ hr (not to be confused with gr)
ur or mr hr dr

¹ Also with value tr, § 41.

x. with k as second consonant:

 *bk*² *pk*² *mk*² nk

² Also with value pk, § 47.

³ See FAULKNER, The Plural and Dual in Old Egyptian, Brussels, 1929; ERMAN, Die Pluralbildung des Aegyptischen, Leipzig, 1879; also Rc. 25, 75. For the dual, see AZ. 47, 42.

§ 72. Number of nouns and adjectives.³—There are three numbers in Egyptian, singular, plural, and dual. The dual is used only for pairs of things or persons.

Sing. m. has no special ending.	Ex.  sm brother.
" f. ends in -t .	Ex.  smt sister.
Plur. m. " " -w .	Ex.  smw brothers.
" f. " " -wt .	Ex.  smwt sisters.
Dual m. " " -wy .	Ex.  smwy pair of brothers.
" f. " " -ty .	Ex.  smty pair of sisters.

Note that the plural of nsu 'king' is written  or  nsuw (?)⁴

§ 73. Writing of the plural and dual.—1. The oldest method consisted in the repetition of the ideogram with which the singular was written, thrice for the plural, twice for the dual.

Exx.	Sing.	Plur.	Dual
	 hr house.	 hrw houses.	 hrwy the two houses.
	 iry eye.	—	 irty the (two) eyes.

⁴ Cf. nyw 'fathers', but here -yw is written out only rarely before Dyn. XIX, see AZ. 48, 25.

This method of writing is archaistically retained in many monumental inscriptions of the Middle and New Kingdoms. The phonetic spelling of the words often precedes the ideograms, which thus appear as determinatives (§ 23).

Exx. Plur. $\overline{\text{srw}}$ officials. Dual $\overline{\text{tprwy}}$ pair of obelisks.
 „ $\overline{\text{nhwt}}$ trees. „ $\overline{\text{tpr}}$ pair of limbs.

2. On the same principle, words that are written purely phonetically may have their component sound-signs, or some of them, repeated. This again, so far as Middle Egyptian is concerned, is for the most part a consciously archaistic practice.

Exx.	Sing.	Plur.	Dual
	$\overline{\text{nr}}$ god.	$\overline{\text{nrw}}$ gods.	$\overline{\text{nrwy}}$ pair of gods.
	$\overline{\text{rn}}$ name.	$\overline{\text{rnw}}$ names.	_____
	$\overline{\text{hki}}$ magic.	$\overline{\text{hkiw}}$ magical spells.	_____

3. Towards the end of the Old Kingdom a determinative of plurality, consisting of three strokes ||| , || , | or | , more rarely of three dots ... , ; ; came into general use.¹ As a rule it accompanies some sign or signs which in earlier times would have been written thrice, and serves as substitute for the repetition.

Exx. $\overline{\text{srw}}$ 'brothers' for old $\overline{\text{srw}}$
 $\overline{\text{nrw}}$ 'gods' „ „ $\overline{\text{nrw}}$
 $\overline{\text{prw}}$ 'houses' „ „ $\overline{\text{prw}}$

Sometimes, however, the 'plural strokes' stand independently as the mark of plurality, as in $\overline{\text{nrw}}$ 'beautiful' (m. plur.); they may even accompany words that are plural only in meaning, not in grammatical form.

Exx. $\overline{\text{sn}}$ they. $\overline{\text{rhyt}}$ people, subjects. $\overline{\text{ts}}$ many.

4. The sign v , less frequently u , which is seen in the dual endings -wy and -ty (§ 72), was originally a mark of duality employed, like the plural strokes ||| , to obviate the repetition of ideograms; thus the archaic writing $\overline{\text{sn}}\text{v}$ 'pair of sisters' was at first no more than an abbreviation of $\overline{\text{sn}}$. Since, however, Old Egyptian orthography habitually omitted the -y of the dual endings -wy and -ty , the substitute v of the original pair of ideograms soon came to be interpreted as that semi-vowel. By the beginning of the Middle Kingdom, accordingly, v had ceased to be a special mark of duality and had become a sound-sign for -y , with a use restricted to the terminations of words. Henceforth 'pair of sisters' is written $\overline{\text{sn}}\text{v}$, where v is -y and where the determinatives $\overline{\text{sn}}$ have to be added.

Obs. The sign q originally represented consonantal (semi-vocalic) y , but at the beginning of some words it seems to have possessed a value indistinguishable from r ; hence it is transliterated r . At the end of words y is written qq or v , but not as a rule interchangeably; qq may occur as last letter but one, see above § 20.²

² On this question see Verdam, I, §§ 109 foll.

§ 74. Omission of the plural and dual endings.—As seen in the last section, the plural and dual numbers of nouns were usually indicated by repetitions of signs or by the use of special determinatives. All the more readily, therefore, could the actual phonetic terminations -w and -wt, -wy and -ty, be omitted in the writing. Hence we find 𓂏𓂏𓂏 in place of 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 , srw 'officials'; 𓂏𓂏 in place of 𓂏𓂏𓂏 nby 'pair of ladies'; indeed, the abbreviated spellings are the commoner, the full feminine plural being especially rare. For example, 𓂏𓂏 usually, nay possibly always, replaces the theoretically correct full writing 𓂏𓂏𓂏 , hmwt 'women', 'wives'.

In the case of adjectives, the plurals and duals of which were formed in the same way as with nouns, such abbreviated spellings are yet more common. The ending of the feminine plural is here never fully written out, and even the plural strokes may be omitted; 𓂏𓂏 and 𓂏𓂏 are equally legitimate writings of nfrwt. In the masculine plural of the adjective the plural strokes are often dispensed with, exx. 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 spdw ddi(w) 'fat birds'; 𓂏𓂏𓂏 krw wgdw 'sturdy oxen'.³

OBS. As we have seen (§ 48), 𓂏 nb 'all', 'any', 'every' was early often written as though invariable, but occasional variants show that this was not the case.

§ 75. After nouns in the dual

1. the sign for the suffix 1st pers. sing. is occasionally preceded by 𓂏𓂏 y, exx. 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 awy-i 'my hands'; 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 rdwy-i 'my feet'.⁴

2. the suffixes 2nd and 3rd m. sing. and 3rd f. sing. sometimes show an ending 𓂏𓂏 sy,⁵ exx. 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 awy-fy 'his two hands'⁶ (also written 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 ?); 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 spty-ky 'thy two lips';⁷ 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 mnty-sy 'her two thighs'.⁸ In this case the dual ending is occasionally omitted after the noun, ex. 𓂏𓂏 gs(wy):fy 'its two sides'.¹⁰

§ 76. The use of 𓂏𓂏 fy just mentioned (§ 75, 2) is extended, strictly speaking inaccurately, to certain words

1. having dual form but singular meaning, ex. 𓂏𓂏 ph(wy):fy 'its end'.¹¹
2. having singular form but a meaning with some implication of duality, ex. 𓂏𓂏𓂏𓂏 sn-nw-fy 'his fellow', lit. 'his second'.¹²

§ 77. Apparent duals and plurals.—1. Certain words ending in -w, mostly abstracts, are by a false analogy written like plurals (§ 73, 2. 3); exx. 𓂏𓂏𓂏 nfrw 'beauty'; 𓂏𓂏𓂏 mnw 'memorial', 'monument'; 𓂏𓂏𓂏 hrw 'neighbourhood', 'time'. Similarly, certain words ending in -wy and -ty, though not really duals, are apt to be written as such; exx. 𓂏𓂏𓂏 hrwy 'night'; 𓂏𓂏 (var. 𓂏𓂏) ntwy 'belonging to a town'. However, 𓂏𓂏 (var. 𓂏𓂏) phty 'strength' was early a true dual;¹³ whether 𓂏𓂏𓂏 hnty 'period', 'end' was so or not is doubtful.

2. Other words sometimes written like plurals, such as 𓂏𓂏𓂏 hrp 'wine',

𐎠𐎡 nbw 'gold', are treated grammatically as singulars; 𐎠𐎡𐎢 mw 'water' is sometimes a plural,¹ sometimes a singular.²

3. Many collectives³ in -t are written with the plural strokes, though they are really feminine singulars and are so treated syntactically; exx. 𐎠𐎡𐎢𐎣 manmt 'herd'; 𐎠𐎡𐎢𐎣𐎤 hnyt 'sailors'.

4. The plural of 𐎠𐎡 rmf 'man' (Latin homo) is written 𐎠𐎡𐎢 or 𐎠𐎡𐎣, but appears from such phrases as 𐎠𐎡𐎢𐎣𐎤 'all men'⁴ to be properly a feminine collective rmf(t); very rarely the writing 𐎠𐎡𐎢𐎣𐎤 rmft nbt is found.⁵

§ 78. Status pronominalis.—When a suffix-pronoun is added to certain feminine nouns, an apparently intrusive -w occasionally appears before the feminine ending -t. Exx. 𐎠𐎡𐎢 dpt 'boat',⁶ but 𐎠𐎡𐎢𐎣𐎤 dpwtf 'his boat';⁷ 𐎠𐎡𐎢 wbt 'meat',⁸ but 𐎠𐎡𐎢𐎣𐎤 wbwtf 'his meat'.⁹

OBS. This phenomenon is due to a displacement of the accent when the suffix is added; some such pronunciation as dāpī (from original dāpwat) may be assumed for the status absolutus, becoming dēpwtēf, with the original w retained under the protection of the accent, in the status pronominalis. The Latin terms here used are borrowed from the grammarians of Coptic, where such modification of the noun before the suffix is regular.

§ 79. Adjectives in -y.¹⁰—The ending -y is employed to form adjectives from nouns and prepositions. Exactly the same formation exists in the Semitic languages, and the Arabic grammarians have invented for it the term nisbe-adjectives, or 'adjectives of relationship'; this name is sometimes applied to the Egyptian counterparts. Examples are:

As the above writings indicate, the formative -y is never written out in the feminines, and the semi-vowels y and w are also elsewhere usually suppressed; for reasons of practical convenience, the less correct transliterations given in brackets are to be preferred as a rule. The -y of the m. sing. is often, but by no means always, written out, and as regards the m. plur. the latent presence of that semi-vowel is betrayed by the use of the sound-sign h tyw (tyw)¹ in derivatives from f. nouns (so mkytyw above) or from m. words ending in t, ex. hstyw 'opponents', 'enemies', an adjective used as a noun and derived from the preposition hst 'before', 'opposite'.

OBS. In Old Egyptian the formative was either omitted or else written with h. An alternative ending -w survives in some nouns like hrw 'lower part' and mltw 'peer'.²

Prepositions that have a special form before the suffixes exhibit the same or a similar form in their derivative adjectives in -y.

Exx. iry 'relating to' from -r 'to' (form with suffixes -r but occasionally also tr):

imy '(who is) in' " m 'in' (" " " im)

In titles and the like these adjectives are sometimes abbreviated in such a way as to be indistinguishable from the prepositions from which they are derived. Exx. imy-r 'overseer', variants im, r, lit. 'one-who-is-in-the-mouth' (of his subordinates); hry-tp 'great chief' of a province, lit. 'great one-who-is-over-the-head'.

¹ This hieroglyph represents the tongue, which is 'what-is-in-the-mouth'; hence its value imy-r is due to a kind of graphic pun, see AZ. 40, 149; 42, 142.

Owing to their resemblance in sound to duals, some adjectives in -y from feminine nouns are written with a twofold ideogram (see above § 77, 1).

Exx. ntwy from ntwt 'town' in the expression ntw ntr ntwy 'local god'.

ibty " ibt 'horizon' " " Hr ibty 'Horus of the horizon'.

§ 80. Adjectives derived from prepositions may, like the latter, govern a noun or pronoun.

Exx. hry sht 'he who is over the secret', a common title.

imyt 'what is in it', lit. that-being-in it.

The adjective mlty (also mltw, § 79 OBS.), which is derived from a f. noun mlt 'copy', may similarly take a suffix, ex. mltyf 'his equal'.⁴

⁴ Sinat 1, 320. The suffix in mltyf, 'his northern one' scil. 'boundary', B. St. 1, 25, 50, has its ordinary possessive sense; sim. the first ex. on p. 63.

From the noun tp 'head' and its derivative preposition tp 'upon' (§ 173) comes the adjective tpy, varr. tp, tpy, also written tp, with the two meanings (1) 'foremost', 'chief', 'first' and (2) 'being upon', ex. tpw tpy dwf 'Anubis (who is) upon his mountain'. There is also a secondary adjective tpy 'first', but this hardly occurs until Late Egyptian.

The beginner must bear in mind that such adjectives in -y, in their most summary writings, are easily mistaken for their originating prepositions; the example tpw tpy dwf just quoted is a case in point, doubt here being the more justifiable, since a prepositional phrase may sometimes be closely linked to a noun, ex. nb-r-dr 'lord of the universe', lit. 'lord to the end' (§ 100, 1); see further § 158.

On occasion some word may intervene between an adjective in -y and the word it governs.

Exx. imt-sw hit 'their originals', lit. their that-being-in-front.¹

ny wt Rē I belong to Rē, lit. I am (§ 44, 3) belonging to Rē.³

³ Ed. 1, 7.

§ 81. Like other adjectives, those ending in -y are often employed as nouns.

Exx. shly 'peasant', 'fowler', properly 'one-belonging-to-the-country shl'.

imntt 'the west', from imnty 'western'.

hr(t)-nt 'the necropolis', lit. 'that under-(i.e. possessing)-the-god'.⁴

SYNTAX OF NOUNS AND PRONOUNS

§ 83. Subject and object.—Egyptian shows no trace of case-endings, and the syntactic relations of nouns were indicated either by the word-order (§§ 27. 66) or by the use of prepositions and the like, e.g. the use of n 'to', 'for' to express the dative (§ 52).

With the personal pronouns, the subject of narrative verbs, i.e. the nominative, is expressed by the suffixes (§ 35, 3), and the object, i.e. the accusative, by the dependent pronouns (§ 44, 1).

OBS. The use of the Latin case-names vocative, dative, etc., in reference to Egyptian is more convenient than strictly scientific. In the case of the genitive, at all events, it could hardly have been avoided.

§ 84. Verbs taking two direct objects hardly exist in Egyptian.⁸ To express the predicative adjunct found in English after verbs of 'making', 'becoming', and the like, Egyptian uses the m of predication (§ 38).

Exx. $\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{d}}\overline{\text{n}}\overline{\text{f}}\overline{\text{w}}\overline{\text{t}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{i}}\overline{\text{h}}\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{y}}\overline{\text{n}}\overline{\text{w}}\overline{\text{t}}\overline{\text{f}}$ tr-n wt cryt m rhh my pen made me celebrated, lit. as a known one.¹

$\overline{\text{h}}\overline{\text{p}}\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{f}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{i}}\overline{\text{g}}$ hpr-f m ig it becomes 19.³

The same construction is found with verbs of 'seeing' and 'knowing', as $\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{i}}$ mi 'see', 'regard (as)';⁴ $\overline{\text{s}}\overline{\text{i}}$ si 'recognize (as)';⁵ and $\overline{\text{g}}\overline{\text{m}}$ 'find (as)'.⁶

After the verbs of 'appointing', 'making' = r 'to' is apt to be used in place of m, with little, if any, difference of meaning.

Ex. $\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{d}}\overline{\text{n}}\overline{\text{f}}\overline{\text{sw}}\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{p}}\overline{\text{t}}\overline{\text{h}}\overline{\text{t}}\overline{\text{y}}\overline{\text{r}}$ rdt-nf sw r r-pt hty-r he placed him as (lit. into, i.e. so as to be) prince and chieftain.⁷

The verb $\overline{\text{s}}\overline{\text{b}}\overline{\text{i}}$ sbi 'teach' takes a direct object of the person and introduces the thing taught by = r 'concerning'.⁸
See Add. for § 84A.

§ 85. The genitive is of two kinds, direct and indirect.⁹

A. The direct genitive follows the noun that governs it, immediately and without connecting link.

Exx. $\overline{\text{i}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{y}}\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{pr}}$ imy-r pr overseer of the house, i.e. steward.

$\overline{\text{n}}\overline{\text{b}}\overline{\text{i}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{h}}$ nb imh possessor of veneration, venerable.

This form of genitive is usual wherever the connexion between governing and governed noun is particularly close, as in titles, set phrases, etc. Hence an epithet belonging to the governing word will normally follow the genitive.

Ex. $\overline{\text{i}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{y}}\overline{\text{r}}\overline{\text{s}}\overline{\text{b}}\overline{\text{t}}\overline{\text{y}}\overline{\text{w}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{h}}$ imy-r sbtyw mh an efficient overseer of fowlers.¹⁰

Examples where the direct genitive is separated from its noun are of extreme rarity.¹¹

In expressions like $\overline{\text{h}}\overline{\text{m}}\overline{\text{utr}}$ 'priest', lit. 'servant of god', $\overline{\text{h}}\overline{\text{wt}}\overline{\text{utr}}$ 'temple', lit. 'house of god', $\overline{\text{pr}}\overline{\text{nsu}}$ 'palace', lit. 'house of the king', $\overline{\text{sr}}\overline{\text{nsu}}$ 'prince', lit. 'son of the king', the priority given to 'god' and 'king' is purely graphic, and due to honorific reasons; see § 57.
